Pierson (1911-1989) during his work for the Seventh-day Adventist Church and his career as a pastor, evangelist, and administrator. It is comprised of sermon outlines, typescripts, transcriptions, article drafts, reference cards and materials, photo albums, manuscripts, and bound volumes.

Custodial History and Immediate Source of Acquisition

This material was donated in four accretions—the first, a manuscript donated by Robert H. Pierson in 1975; the second, the contents of three drawer-card files and photograph albums and scrapbooks donated by Dollis Pierson in 1994 and 1999; the third, Robert H. Pierson’s sermon binders, donated by his son, Robert G. Pierson, in 2019; and the fourth, additional sermon outlines, manuscripts, and reference material donated by Robert G. Pierson in early 2020. Correspondence from Pierson’s time as General Conference President, which was also donated in the early 1990s, was accessioned as an accretion to the Presidential Correspondence Collection.

Biographical Information

Robert H. Pierson was born January 3, 1911 in Brooklyn, Iowa to Will and Mabel Pierson. When he was fourteen, the family moved to Belleview, Florida, where he attended Summerfield High School from 1926 to 1929. For two years after high school he was a buttermaker. He and Dollis Mae Smith (1911-2006) married in Ocala, Florida on September 2, 1931. The pair then traveled from Florida to Tennessee to attend Southern Junior College (now Southern Adventist University). Robert completed the two-year ministerial course and Dollis completed the two-year normal course at the college. In 1933, he commenced work as a pastor and radio evangelist in the Georgia-Cumberland Conference, and she taught church school in Georgia. During this time they had their first son, John Duane (1932-). In 1934, he was given the additional role of Home Missionary and Sabbath School Secretary for the conference.

In April 1935, Robert Pierson was called to connect with the Southern Asia Division for evangelistic work in India. Robert, Dollis, and John Duane sailed from New York City on July 27, 1935. They arrived in England, where Robert took a short course from the School of Tropical Medicine in London and did some language study, and then arrived in India on September 26, 1935. He wrote the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists upon his arrival about their trip to India, observing that, “Coming out we saw evidences of war on every hand – British or Italian warships at every port of call nearly – all of these things made us anxious to reach our destination and join our labors with others here to haste the gospel of a very soon-coming Saviour.”

Though originally meant to work in the Marathi district, the Division leadership assigned Pierson to work as a pastor and evangelist in Bombay (now Mumbai), India. He also spent part of his time overseeing the home missionary work of the West Indian Union. Pierson was ordained on January 4, 1936 in Poona, India by Nathaniel C. Wilson, Chester L. Torrey, George Enoch, and Judson S. James. During this time, the Piersons had their second son, Robert (1937-). In 1939, Pierson became the superintendent (today, president) of the Tamil Mission in South India, a role he held until December 1941, when he took on the work of the superintendent of the South India Union Mission until departing for furlough in July 1942.

That first furlough, scheduled for 1942, had been delayed by a few months due to the United States joining World War II. Pierson and the other foreign Adventist leaders in India created plans for the work in India to continue even if all of them were forced to leave. When the Piersons departed for the United States, it was noted by Pierson that their furlough would last either for the regular amount of time furloughs took or for the duration of the war, “whichever is the less”.

Their return to the mission field hindered by the ongoing war, the Piersons took up residence first in Takoma Park, Maryland, where Pierson briefly pastored the Takoma Park Seventh-day Adventist Church, and then in New York City, as Pierson worked for the Bible Auditorium of the Air as a radio evangelist. During this time, Pierson wrote to the General Conference of his preference for field or evangelistic work over pastoral work, and of his desire that any assignment he received, whether he preferred it or not, would give him “a little broader experience for my work in the Mission Field” and an opportunity to promote mission work.

In March 1944, the Piersons were called to the Inter-American Division, where they lived in Trinidad and Pierson served as the president of the British West Indies Union and then as the Caribbean Union president. In 1950, the Piersons returned to the Southern Asia Division, where Pierson had been called to serve as division president. One subject Pierson emphasized while in this role was temperance. In 1954, the Piersons moved back to the United States, and Pierson served at Southern Missionary College and as president of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference and then the Texas Conference.

After Pierson was elected president of the Southern Africa Division at the 1958 General Conference Session and moved to what is now Zimbabwe, he supervised the transition of the Southern African Division to the new Trans-Africa Division. In 1961, Pierson was visiting Adventist missionaries and church members in Elisabethville (now Lubumbashi) in what is now the Democratic Republic of the Congo when control of the city was contested by fighting between Katangan and United Nations soldiers.

Pierson remained president of the Trans-Africa Division until elected as General Conference president in June 1966. The Piersons then moved to Takoma Park, Maryland, for Robert to take up his new role as president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. He would remain in this role until January 3, 1979.

After receiving advice by medical professionals regarding his worsening health, Pierson officially announced at the 1978 Annual Council that he and Dollis had decided to retire. As reported in the pages of the Adventist Review, the announcement was a dramatic surprise for what had been expected to be a routine business meeting. “Our physicians tell us we must shift our burdens to younger shoulders,” Pierson told the meeting’s attendees before redirecting them to the matters at hand and concluding, “My pen, my voice, as long as God gives me strength, will be dedicated to this one all-consuming passion! We solicit an interest in your prayers, and may God bless and keep every one of you.”

Pierson kept busy even in retirement. He continued to write and preach and, accompanied by Dollis, to travel. He did three months of ministerial work in the Cayman Island Mission in 1980 and visited the Southern Asia Division for its year-end meetings in 1981. He and Dollis were only a few weeks into their three-month assignment to the Kailua church on Oahu, Hawaii when he suffered a heart attack and died on January 21, 1989. He was buried in Hendersonville, North Carolina on January 26, 1989.

Pierson is probably best remembered for his emphasis on “revival and reformation” during his administration and for the administrative changes he oversaw to the Seventh-day Adventist Church’s structure as it grew, including the creation of new administrative committees, the establishment of the Biblical Research Institute, and the codification of Seventh-day Adventism’s Fundamental Beliefs. While he was in office, there were considerable theological and cultural debates occurring both inside and outside of the Seventh-day Adventist community, including but not limited to questions about abortion, civil rights, justification by faith, race, righteousness by faith, sanctification, the Spirit of Prophecy, and women’s rights.

Description Control Element

Description based on DACS. Originally drafted by Ashlee Chism, August 2019 to January 2020 and January 2023 to August 2023. The decision was made to largely itemize the collection, especially the sermon outlines, due to the nature of the materials and because of Pierson's prominent role within the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Material within the bound volumes (especially those containing clippings of Pierson's writings published in Church periodicals) are not itemized, as they are available elsewhere.

Completion of the processing of this collection was delayed due to a very large accretion of materials soon followed by the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic and subsequent work-from-home orders. Once in-office work resumed, processing on the Pierson Collection slowly progressed until it was completed.

Researchers should note that while it is obvious from the materials and from contemporary sources that Pierson had his own system for organizing his outlines, cards, and other files, the precise structure of that system could not be duplicated by the processing archivist. The sermon outlines are roughly alphabetized; however, each outline binder was treated as a discrete item and contents were not rearranged to improve the alphabetization. Whenever possible, Pierson's titles have been reproduced as-is, but occasionally clarifications have been made. The main example of this is that Roman numerals after titles are original to Pierson's system, but Arabic numerals after a title have been inserted when necessary to indicate an additional version of an outline. Any exclamation points which have been included are original to Pierson.

Sources for the biographical information include the biographical information blanks of Robert and Dollis Pierson from 1935, 1944, 1949, and 1968; the appointee file of Robert H. Pierson; General Conference Committee minutes; various articles from the Review, especially the issue after he announced his retirement (October 26, 1978, 155:43) and after his death (February 9, 1989, 166:6).

Series 1: Outlines

This is by far the largest series in the collection. These outlines cover the entirety of Pierson’s career, from the 1930s through the 1980s. There is a mix of handwritten and typed outlines, and the size and quality of the paper vary throughout. Occasionally Pierson glued pages together; these were not able to be separated. Notes or additional material which were clipped to a page or to an entire outline are stored with that outline.

Series 3: Office and Reference Materials

The materials in this series are largely related to the theological debates and administrative issues which Pierson engaged in during his time as General Conference President, but also include more routine items such as full itineraries for the travel he did during that period and Pierson's card files (which have not been itemized). Subjects in this series include, but are not limited to, the Spirit of Prophecy; the 1888 General Conference Session; righteousness by faith; the role of women; justification; sanctification; and the nature of Christ.

Series 4: Manuscripts

This series largely contains manuscripts for several of Pierson's published works as well as several unpublished works and a few manuscripts that were in progress at the time of Pierson's death.

Additionally, the series contains a manuscript not authored by Pierson. The earliest manuscript in the series was written by Isaac Barry Burton (1874-1928). A copy of this manuscript was deposited by Burton's grandson in the Seventh-day Adventist Heritage Room at Andrews University (now a part of the Center for Adventist Research at Andrews University) in 1976; it is probable that a copy of the manuscript was sent to Pierson around the same time.
